

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

Trading processes and market processes interact with each other on a platform. Each of the trading processes has a trading strategy embodied in a decision table. Each of the market processes has a market methodology that may employ a decision table in like manner as the trading processes. Accordingly, the trading processes and market processes are easy to configure. The decision table comprises rules having conditions and actions that are to be performed when the conditions are true.